Black History Month Film Festival:
“Eyes on the Prize: Vol. IV
Monday, February 29, 11 a.m. - 12:30 p.m., in North Hall and Library [NL], Room 210

The BCC Library Department presents its first Film Festival for Black History Month. In honor of this milestone, we will be showing films related to the history of African-Americans across the canvas of America. “Eyes on the Prize: Vol. IV, “No Easy Walk” (1961-1963) follows the expansion of the Southern civil rights campaign into a mass movement. Late in 1961, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) and the Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. joined William Anderson and the Albany Movement in a comprehensive campaign against the city's strict racial laws. Unlike some earlier protests, however, the demonstration in Albany, Georgia did not spark the usual bout of police brutality. Local police chief Laurie Pritchett had studied the movement's tactic of nonviolence and did not allow physical attacks on the demonstrators – avoiding violent confrontations and negative publicity.

Thursday, March 3, 12 - 1:30 p.m., in Colston Hall [CO], Room 203

“Vito” paints a touching portrait of newly politicized Vito Russo, who found his voice as a gay activist and critic of LGBT representation in the media. He went on to write “The Celluloid Closet,” the first book to critique Hollywood’s portrayals of gays on screen. During the AIDS crisis in the 1980s, Vito became a passionate advocate for justice via the newly formed ACT UP before his death in 1990. OCD credit is available for this event. Presented by the Rainbow Alliance Club.

Faculty Lecture Series
Thursday, March 3, 2 - 3:30 p.m., in North Hall and Library [NL], Room 314

The BCC English Department cordially invites you to attend a talk by Dr. Jonathan Scott, “Secularism From Below: On the Bolivarian Revolution.” When Gil Scott-Heron rapped in his famous spoken word poem, “The Revolution Will Not Be Televised” about the coming of an American revolution so sweeping and popular that not even the commercial mass media would be able to keep up with it, he didn’t have in mind today’s revolution in Latin America and the Caribbean. Of course he was thinking of the left-populist movement in the United States during the late 1960s and early 1970s, organized around the civil rights and anti-war struggles. That revolution never happened, but the one in Latin America and the Caribbean actually did. Known as the Bolivarian Revolution, it started in the early 2000s and continues today to win contests for state power all across the southern hemisphere. While it’s true that it has not been televised in North America, this isn’t a result of its mass popular-democratic scale, à la Gil Scott-Heron. Rather it’s because of a U.S. corporate media blackout. This lecture will focus on two aspects of the Bolivarian Revolution: (1) its major moments and (2) the near-total absence of information about it in the U.S. mainstream media, which is believed by many to be conscious and deliberate.

Quote of the Week
“I don’t know what the future may hold, but I know who holds the future.” Ralph David Abernathy (1926 – 1990), Minister and Civil Rights Leader.
