

Pol 31 -- Comparative Politics

Do you want to study about countries such as Nigeria, Brazil, the UK, Russia, Iran, France, Japan, and South Africa?

Why are some countries are more economically developed than others?

Why are some countries more economically equal than others?

Why is the quality of life better in some countries than in others?

Why are some countries democratic while others have military dictatorships?

Why do some countries have effective governments with minimal corruption while others countries have governments that are ineffective and deeply corrupt?

Why is nationalism a powerful political force in some countries and not in others?

Find out! Enroll in POL 31 Comparative Politics

This course is open to students in any major. This course fulfills Pathways Flexible Core A – World Cultures and Global Issues. This course fulfills POL requirement for POL option students.

Questions about POL 31 Comparative Politics, other Political Science course offerings, or the Political Science Option? Please contact Prof. Peter Kolozi (peter.kolozi@bcc.cuny.edu) or Prof. Hisseine Faradj (hisseine.faradj@bcc.cuny.edu)